BearManor Media. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Paperback. 194 pages. Dimensions: 8.9in. x 5.9in. x 0.6in. Kwek Leng Beng, Chairman of Millennium and Copthorne Hotels, has had tremendous success owning and renovating some of the worlds greatest historic hotels. The Galeria at the Millennium Biltmore Long before construction of the Millennium Biltmore, proclaimed as a monument to the growth and prosperity of the city, could begin it had to be designed. And on December 17, 1921, architects-designers Schultze and Weaver began what the media of the time called one of the brightest stars in the firmament of local enterprise. It certainly promised to be and become the largest construction project in the history of Los Angeles. Influenced heavily by Italian and Spanish Renaissance architecture, the architectural firm of Schultze and Weaver blueprinted the hotel in just 47 days. The partnership of Leonard Schultze and S. Fullerton Weaver had left indelible work in New York with the Waldorf Astoria in 1931, and also on other grand Gotham projects. The Millennium Biltmore was the firms first major commission, but had the blessing of John McEntee Bowman, a Canadian-born hotelier who was the founding president of Bowman-Biltmore hotel, built in New York in 1913. Bowman,...
